

Eduardo Pisani

CEO All.Can International, Belgium

Biography

Eduardo Pisani is the CEO of All.Can International, a global multi-stakeholder non-profit organization focused on improving cancer care efficiency. He also serves as a senior strategy advisor to other organizations in public policy and digital health, notably a start-up with a social impact mission active in low- and middle-income countries in Africa and in India.

Eduardo has contributed to advancing public policy discussions from a close vantage point, having over three decades of international experience in senior roles for global healthcare companies and associations. He spent most of his professional life in Brussels and Geneva, where he gained an in-depth knowledge of the functioning of the European Union and of multilateral organisations, particularly in the area of health and pharmaceutical policy and legislation.

Eduardo graduated in Law in Italy and is admitted to the Italian Bar. He served on the board of international and European groups and on various advisory boards.
