

Meera Sivasothy pursued a degree in Business, majoring in Accounting, from RMIT University in Melbourne. She kicked off her professional career working in investor relations and business development. In 2008, an opportunity arose in the form of the radio station BFM89.9, and without any prior experience in broadcasting, Meera began her career in the media.

Starting off working with the news team, she then moved on to produce the Bigger Picture segment - the soul of the station - before taking on the role of the segment's main Anchor Presenter in 2010.

Meera is now General Manager at BFM, while she continues to host the Health and Living radio segment, weekdays at 4pm.

Through her career at BFM, Meera has enjoyed a post-graduate crash course in the business of life.